A HUSBAND STEALS HIS WIFE AND AB-SCONDS WITH HEB - We sometimes see accounts of married men running away, with other people's wives; but here is the first instance: we have ever heard of a bian stealing his own wife and absorbing with her. C. S. Carriey is his pame and he lived in Bedford. In May last he disappeared and it was supposed had described his family. The sequel we have a correspondent of the Bedford Senting to tell:

his wife a letter by a negro the contents of which were known to no one but herself.

About 19. o'clock Mrs. Carney left her father's house anknown to any of the family, and has not been seen by any of them since.

"Carney and wife kept themselves secreted during the day, and about 9 o'clock that night got, on the Western bound freight train near Price's tank, and hid farewell to this vicinity."

A curious case was decided in New York before a Magistrate on Friday last. A woman committed an assault upon a customer of her husband's, the latter being a tailor. The evidence of the complainant was so clear and so amply corroborated that the Magistrate was about to commit the woman to jail. At this juncture it was proven that the tailor was a witness to the assault. This cleared the woman, there being an old law of the State which makes the husband responsible for an assault committed by the wife in her husband's presence. The complainant, however, declined to have the husband punished for the wife's offense.
